 Music learning can be a lifelong process for children, whether it is for fun or for personal growth.

 Music helps stimulate children's left-brain development and increase their logical, verbal and memory power.

 The playing of a musical instrument can help develop children's eyes, ears, muscles, brain and motor skills.

 The music starter class incorporates the dynamics of parent-child relationship in the learning process as parental care is still much needed at this stage of children growth (age 3-5).
