Music Training & Personal Development by Simon Leung

As a free lance flute, clarinet, saxophone, guitar, piano and music theory teacher for more than 20 years, I have been enthusiastic in organizing and preparing student wind ensembles for performing in concert halls, public areas, shopping centers and club houses. I have also sent a few hundreds of my students to take the two London-based, internationally recognized music practical examinations with above average results in return (ABRSM / TRINITY Music Exam).

Giving students a correct concept and method of playing the instrument of their own choice and encouraging them to perform in the public are the top priorities of my teaching objective. Years of experience proves that training and encouraging students to perform in the public helps build their self-confidence and motivate them to work harder towards a higher goal.
